RE: Gas Permits Issued to Homeowners

Gas Permits and inspections are required for the installation, or replacement, of gas piping, venting, appliances or equipment.

Gas Permits may be obtained by a homeowner performing work on a single family residence, in which the homeowner resides, however, the homeowner is required to review the scope of the work to be performed by the homeowner with the inspector, prior to the permit issuance.

Gas Permits shall not be issued to a homeowner who will be contracting or employing a person, firm, limited liability company, or corporation to perform the work.

When a homeowner obtains a gas permit, the homeowner becomes the "gas contractor", and becomes personally responsible for abiding by all ordinances, codes, and regulations of the county pertaining to the installation or replacement of gas piping, venting, appliances or equipment. It is the responsibility of the homeowner to call for all necessary inspections, in accordance with the International Residential Code.
